STEAM

STEAM is an educational concept that is different from traditional single-disciplinary and book-learning education. It has been four or five years since the concept was coined. The success of anything depends on human capability to make or metabolism but need multiple capabilities, such as the processes of high-tech industry products not only need science and technology to use, but also need the participation of art design, and can also meet the good appearance and more diversified comprehensive abilities of arts. However the rigidity of social life and the development of basic writing, literature need more integrated talents to explore the concept for STEAM.

Includes assembly instructions for 10models. Only one model may be built at a time.
