WHO'S HAKKA

WE ARE THE EXPERTS OF FOOD EQUIPMENT

Over 2000 years ago, the Hakka people migrated from Middle China to South China due to civil unrest, preserving their language and culture. They established a rich culinary tradition, including various delicious dishes and food preservation techniques.

As a member of the Hakka community, we annually undertake the tradition of making sausages starting from December, along with preparing a plethora of deep-fried foods which can withstand prolonged periods without refrigeration.

Additionally, we produce wine for the Chinese New Year celebrations and acquire a substantial amount of fish, necessitating the use of dehydrators to ensure preservation.

Furthermore, our cuisine boasts an abundance of vegetables such as green beans, tomatoes, and sweet potatoes, along with a multitude of traditional tools designed for slicing and dicing, reflecting our enduring cultural heritage.

Since 2004, the Hakka Brothers have established their own manufacturing plant dedicated to crafting food equipment, ranging from meat grinders and sausage stuffers to smokers and dough mixers, thus perpetuating our culinary legacy into the present day.

HAKKA

YOUR MOST RELIABLE SOURCING PARTNER

In 2015, Hakka Brothers Corp established its inaugural U.S. sales office and distribution center in Hayward, California. Building on this success, three years later, in 2018, a second sales office and distribution hub were launched in Dearborn, Michigan. Looking ahead, Hakka Brothers is poised to expand further with two additional strategically located warehouses in the U.S.

Initially, our foray into the U.S. market began through e-commerce channels, including prominent platforms such as Amazon Marketplace, eBay, Walmart, Wayfair, Home Depot, and our own website. The popularity of our online best-sellers, including sausage stuffers, dough mixers, meat mixers, salad spinners, and gas ranges, has paved the way for Hakka Brothers to venture into dealer distribution sales starting in 2024.

This new approach offers our valued customers an alternative avenue to access our acclaimed product range.
